

Job Opportunity Spam - 12/4/2018

While many student are looking for work, you may receive job solicitation offers to your inbox from time to time. A small percentage might have some weight, but most of these are not legitimate. The example below was reported to Abuse questioning its merit.

The first indication this is fake is the sender's address. Normally, students don't pose as the "Head of Recruitment" for some very generalized-sounding company. The information they are requesting up front is concerning. All of this together is exactly what someone might need to fill out any kind of subscription or form in YOUR NAME. Finally, if getting easy money quickly sounds too good to be true, it usually is!

From: Joe B Student <joebstudent@students.tntech.edu>
Sent: Tuesday, December 4, 2018 8:53 AM
To: Joe User
Subject: JOB Opportunity That Pay between $100 - $500 A week

Congratulations,

The Premier Intelligence Shopping Company ® is accepting applications for qualified individuals for Walmart shopping survey. It's fun, rewarding and you choose when and where you want to shop. You are never obligated to accept an assignment. There is no charge to become or take a survey and you do not need previous experience, you will have access to training materials via e-mail, fax or postal mail.

-Requirements:

18 Years old or above.
Can read and write English.
No Experience needed Like Shopping.

-Job.Pay:

The assignment will pay between $100 - $500 per duty.

~Please reply this email with the correct information below to sign-up;

Full Name:
Mailing Address:
City:
State:
Zip Code:
Cell Phone:
Email Address:
Age:

The quicker you apply the bigger the possibility you will get a shop to visit soonest.

Regards,
Head of Recruitment
The Premier Intelligence Shopping Company

Please report any suspicious emails to abuse@tntech.edu